INTER-CLASS TRACK MEET WILL BE HELD

Special Session Was Called Monday to Formulate a Scheme to Have Spring Athletics.

At a meeting late Monday afternoon Coach Curtis called a special meeting of the high school of all boys interested in spring athletics. The majority ruled in favor of the idea, and it was decided by a committee after the meeting was over, to hold an inter-class track meet sometime in the near future.

The events in which the various classes will compete are the shot-put, throwing the hammer, running high and broad jumps, dashes for various distances, and many others. The classes are going to work hard for these events, especially the three lower classes, to try and work up a good track team for next year, and succeeding seasons.

NATIONALS TAKE MATCH FROM MERRICKS SQUAD WINNING LAST TWO GAMES

While the lid was coming off in the big league baseball the Nationals did a little pastime themselves for the Osborn aggregation went the full distance with Merrick's semi-pros and licked them by ninety-four points, at Miller's last night.

In the first inning the semi-pros started on the path to victory and walloped home a lead of 43 pins but were backed to the rear when H. Howard and Osborn put across high scores in the next two games. None of the players last night bowled in their regular form, both teams failing to touch a eight hundred score. Osborn and H. Howard were tied for high score with 197. Tonight the Big Six squad of Abraham will meet Cook's Americans.

WILL START WORK ON NEW BUILDINGS SOON

Springlike Weather Encouraging—Plans Are Being Drawn for New Buildings at Park Association Grounds.

(By "Buck" Hunter.)
Springlike weather has brought renewed interest in the project of holding a fair in Janesville during the month of August next and just a few more days of sunshine like on Monday and Tuesday and the Park Association grounds will be one of the best places in Janesville for the plans are all about completed for the erection of the new grand stand and the other buildings that will go to make one of the prettiest fair grounds in the state.

A meeting was held Tuesday with the different secretaries of fairs of the Wisconsin Grand Circuit and all that were present spoke in glowing praises of the Janesville grounds and the general outlay for the coming fair, and not one member that was present could see anything but success for Janesville and her coming fair in August.

When strangers come to the city and speak as these gentlemen have of the outlay here, why shouldn't we feel proud and put forth our best efforts, to make this fair one grand success.

"Give me the boys with the bright and lustrous eyes," says Jimmy Sheekard, manager of the Cleveland A. A. team. "I figure that a player to be up on his toes throughout a game must get every bit of his night's sleep." Figure on carrying with me this season a crew of boys who get to bed in respectable season and are up with the lark in the morning.

Pitchers somehow don't seem to care much for St. Louis as a town to pitch in, the climate there being in such no weather that a twirler's arm soon starts to decay. At least so a number of them have said. "Red" Nelson, who pitched for the Browns several seasons ago, says that his failure to stick in the big leagues results from the rotten climate in St. Louis and unpleasant weather conditions. Nelson has since starred in the Southern league and he has taken pains to point out that if he returns to the majors it must not be St. Louis. Elmer Brown, the Southern league star, who was sold to Brooklyn last season by Montgomery, had played at St. Louis at one time and he agreed with Nelson that St. Louis was an awful good place to acquire a bum wing.

According to Tom Jones, the well-known manager of Jess Willard, Ad Wolgast, Abe Attell and others, Johnny Kilbane hasn't made near the money out of the fight game thus far that he should. For a champ in his class, and a real champ, Johnny has realized less change than any fighter of recent times. And Tom Jones seems to know the dope and able to talk with conviction. "Johnny Kilbane never made as much as $5,000 for one fight," says Jones. "He only got about $1,500 when he first fought Attell, altho it was reported that he made $3,000. He fought Rivers for an even thousand, altho the second time he got $1,500. And he isn't getting a thousand apiece for fighting these smaller boys, either. He probably takes them on for about four or five hundred. It's all wrong, because this Kilbane kid is a real champ, with a worse wallop than most lightweights and he's the fastest thing in the ring. There seems to be an idea that he and Jimmy Dunn are well healed, but they haven't half the change that they should have. In Johnny's entire career I'll bet he hasn't gathered as much as $25,000."

Albert Duray, the Gaul, will drive a 163-inch Peugeot, of almost insignificant dimensions, in the next five-hundred-mile race on the Indianapolis motor speedway. Rene Thomas, who will team with Albert Duray at the wheel of a Delage in the big race, was born, it is said, with the license of gasoline in his nostrils. He has a string of medals, it is stated, sufficient to cover the walls of his dining room.

Amusements

Now for something new theatrical. Rowland & Clifford's production, a fresh play named "September Morn," having selected this popular subject for a lively piece with music which introduces a big company of fifty people, supporting that excellent comedian Dave Lewis, who was the former star in "The Royal Chef," "Don't Lie To Your Wife," and other taking comedy hits. The chorus trips through the latest Tangos, Shark Swiss Lips and the Hesitation Dances, fetchingly, over which the country has fairly gone wild. The costumes and scenery are brilliant. With the company is Minerva Coverdale, "The American Gaby." She fairly sails through the atmosphere—sings, dances and does other dashing things that make her the much sought and talked of little lady on the stage today. Frances Kennedy is also in the cast. The production comes from a delightful run at the LaSalle Opera House, Chicago.

MARION WOODS STOCK COMPANY. PLEASE ANOTHER BIG HOUSE.

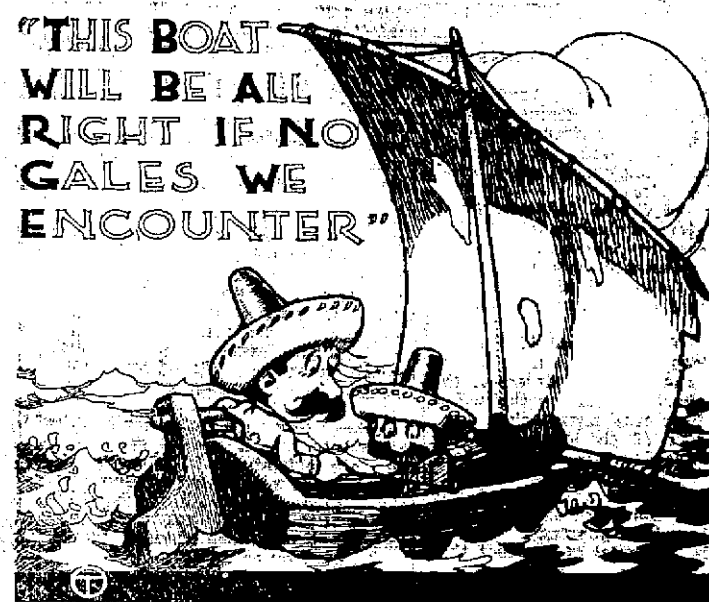

"Diane's Atonement," a very interesting drama, was presented by the Marion-Woods company at the Myers last evening. Miss Marion gave a very clear portrayal of the character of Diane, and was ably supported by the entire cast. While the interest throughout the play is very intense, there is enough comedy to relieve the seriousness. The specialties between the acts were greatly enjoyed, as were the feature pictures before the play. The Marion-Woods company are sure to become favorites with the Janesville theatre goers, as their performances are meriting the approval of all. A powerful political drama, "Love and Politics" is the bill for tonight.

THE INSULT.

That there may be no misunderstanding at the real reason for the sudden change of the administration from "watching and waiting" policy to the following of an armed force to the coast of Mexico and rushing the great Atlantic fleet into active service are given:

Last Friday morning, April 10, a boat's crew of United States marines, in command of Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp, left the gunboat Dolphin for Tampico to get a fresh supply of gasoline.

The United States flag was flying from the stern of the whaleboat when it approached the landing in Tampico. For no assigned cause Assistant Paymaster Copp and his men were placed under arrest as they stepped ashore.

Surrounded by a detail of Mexican federal troops they were marched up and down the principal streets of the city, and finally taken to the police station, where they were locked up.

One report of the affair says the United States flag was snatched from the stern of the whaleboat when the arrests were made and carried and subjected to the jeers and hisses of the anti-American populace.

There is no denial of the fact that the prisoners were made the subjects of an anti-American demonstration, though at the time of their arrest they had just stepped from a boat flying the United States flag, were wearing the uniform of the United States and were conducting themselves in an orderly manner.

After the Americans had been detained several hours, word of their arrest was carried to Rear Admiral Mayo, who demanded their immediate release.

The demand was complied with, but the only explanation made was a brief expression of regret for the alleged mistake.

DEMOCRATIC POLICY.

There was one democratic member of congress who openly apologized recently to the House of Representatives for calling the republican congresses extravagant. Perhaps he knew what he talked about, but the rank and file of the democratic office-holders do not know what economy really means. Take for example the "peppy" wise and pound foolish" policy of Postmaster General Burleson. He invites criticism by his demand that post-office employees be more sparing in the use of jute string in tying up bundles. It is trying to save at the spigot while wasting at the bung. So it goes. This is the doctrine demonstrated in every line of state affairs. Postmaster General Burleson announces that as soon as a republican term of office expires a good democrat will supplant him. The old spoils system all over again. Perhaps we should not be too harsh on this system, but really it does seem a shame that where a man has devoted the best years of his life to the upbuilding of a postoffice he is rudely thrown aside for some political henchman who must be rewarded. Perhaps we should not blame the democrats for this for they have been taught the spoils system by long, lean and hungry years. However, to get back to the question of democratic policy and in this connection democratic extravagance, listen to the following excerpt from the address to congress of Representative Sisson of Mississippi.

"This is the most outrageously and criminally extravagant congress that ever sat on the American continent. I want to apologize to the republicans for having called them extravagant when they were in control of the house. They were modest in comparison with the appropriations that we are now making."

Here is another for you. It repudiates the "pound wise and penny-foolish" doctrine of the postmaster general, so why worry?

SEEK OLD FRIENDS.

The ideal existence of every newspaper owner is to make his own particular newspaper so absolutely necessary to every household that no other publication will take its place. To meet this demand every corner of the world is sought for news. All the features that will attract and hold the readers are supplied and the local news is so displayed that it is easily found and enjoyed by the readers. However, there is one feature that the readers never overlook and some of the advertisers do. That is the fact that the readers search through the columns of the paper for the advertisements of their favorite grocer, butcher, dry goods merchants, or any store where they are in the habit of doing business. An exchange says: Newspapers readers soon grow to have an unconscious intimacy with advertisers whose names they see day after day. In the home paper, read during the leisure hour, persistent advertisers get to be regarded as household friends. Their messages are looked for as eagerly as are the messages from Washington or the local news in the personal column.

BOOST, BROTHER, BOOST!
 "You'll Succeed in Janesville" is a fair-sounding slogan, but it is not half as good as "Boost, Brother, Boost!" That means a whole lot more. If every citizen of Janesville would start in on a systematic campaign of boosting there would be few minutes during the twenty-four hours of each day that Janesville was not mentioned somewhere on this continent. There is an old saying that drops of water will wear away a stone, and so continual boosting for Janesville will overcome many defects which we see but which the general public is unmindful of. Janesville products are sent to the four parts of the globe. Janesville is known as the home of many industries that any city might well be proud of and if every one makes it their personal business to become a booster there is no need why the industries of the city can not be doubled or trebled within a short time.

Naval officers do not take kindly to the secretary of navy's orders to discipline with the ship's pool for entertainment on board. Perhaps Secretary Daniels did not realize just what it all meant when he issued his famous order prohibiting liquor on board ships of the United States navy. Recently he sought to formulate an order that the enlisted men and officers should all eat at one mess and when this was objected to he decided upon a sample of the "grape juice" navy for a change.

Congressman Cooper is subject to all sorts of bitter attacks by political enemies for various alleged misdeeds while acting as the people's representative in Washington. That is political misdeeds. However it is safe to say that he has the recognition of members of congress that it would take even the most radical anti-Cooper man in the first district, should he be elected, years to obtain. So much for being a good, conservative statesman.

Candidates for sheriff are already springing up out of the tall timber. Two ex-sheriffs, Ransom and Scheibel, are said to be contemplating making the race while Roach and a half dozen others are reported as grooming themselves for the contest. The more the merrier. The larger the field the better the opportunity offered for a good selection of capable officers.

Perhaps Governor McGovern may be induced to call a special session of the state legislature at the call of the office-holders who want to keep their jobs if there is a possibility, but it is certain that he will not avert the storm that has been created among the farmers by so doing.

It looks as though the days of "watching and waiting" on the part of Wilson and his cabinet as regards the Mexican situation, are about over. The fleet is being concentrated in the vicinity of the Mexican coast for emergency and it looks like business at last.

Senator Teasdale has come and gone. He has formed his opinion of Janesville and has expressed it to some. However, it is safe to say that his opinion is not far different from what the majority of the citizens know really exist.

How about South Janesville? If Janesville is going to be a city that lives up to the law why not the town of Rock. It is up to the sheriff and district attorney to see that this is an established fact.

How about fire drills in the city schools? Are they not as necessary here as in other cities where the buildings are not half as hazardous? Dismissal drills do not take the place of real, genuine drills to teach what to do in the case of emergency.

CURTAIN FOR A TREE

Sometimes It Is Necessary to Shield It From the Sun's Rays.

The business of transplanting trees is a large and growing industry, for it is now generally recognized that the presence of trees about a home adds a great deal to its desirability. Builders and real estate agents and that this is an important consideration in the sale of real estate, so that recently there has been a demand for improved methods of transplanting trees in order that new houses and new neighborhoods might be supplied with shade. In the suburban transactions this is particularly true, for it is found difficult to make any disposition whatever of a house which is not surrounded with a growth of trees.

Trees of large proportions are now successfully dug up with a big ball of earth surrounding the roots, and shipped to considerable distances frequently and then put in the ground again, and if they are given careful and intelligent attention there is a great chance that they will grow and prosper. A transplanted tree must be shielded from the direct action of the sun's rays for a time after it has been located in its new home, and the device shown here is a recently devised method of affording it this protection. The apparatus is portable, and after it has fulfilled its mission in one locality is transported to another field of usefulness. It has just been presented.

The evening admission prices are 75 cents for orchestra chairs, and they are filled every night.  Biograph Presents
"JUDITH OF BETHULIA"
 In 4 Parts
 By Thomas Bailey Aldrich

A wonderful presentation through motion pictures of the tragedy of Judith and Holofernes, based on the Apocrypha story. A spectacular reproduction of the storming and siege of the Jewish stronghold, Bethulia, by the invading Assyrian army under Holofernes; the terrible sufferings of the Israelites, unrelieved until the cunning of the beautiful Judith was turned to their aid; the weakness in the nature of the brutal Holofernes which was turned to advantage by the artful Jewess, resulting in the tragedy, the severed head, Jewish inspiration and Jewish victory. A spectacle and a drama that is being recognized in America and abroad as a triumph of cinematography. Pearson's Weekly (London) says of it, "One of the three greatest films, if not actually the best film, the world has ever seen. The scenes showing the attacks by Assyrians on the inhabitants of the city are unparalleled in the realm of moving pictures."

There will be no advance in admission.

LOCAL WATER COMPANY WARNED BY COMMISSION TO COMPLY WITH ORDER

MUST PUT INTO EFFECT THE RATES DETERMINED UPON IN 1911 FOLLOWING INVESTIGATION.

HEAVY CHARGE TO CITY

Increase Expense of $15,000 to $18,000 Annually to City Under Ruling Made Two and a Half Years Ago.

In a letter to the Janesville Water Company the state railroad commission has ordered the local utility to comply with the rates determined upon by the commission in their ruling issued August 1, 1911, following an investigation of the situation in this city. The commission threatens to prosecute the water company and impose a penalty in case the warning to comply with the new rates is not observed.

The only reason the commission gives for not enforcing their orders sooner is the fact that soon after they were given, or early in 1912, the electors of the city of Janesville, voted, as was supposed, to take over the plant of the water company to be operated by the municipality. For two years past the municipal ownership question has been hanging fire and the commission did not presume to enforce its rulings until some sort of a satisfactory settlement had been reached.

Since the election at which the city ownership question was submitted has been declared illegal by the state supreme court, it leaves the utility company in undisputed right to operate its plant in this city, and consequently the rate commission now assumes to insist on compliance with the rates determined upon over two and a half years ago. Mayor James A. Fathers has indicated, however, that he will again submit the municipal ownership question to the voters as soon as the new council is organized, but the outcome will not effect the attitude of the commission one way or the other, it is believed by persons who are fully acquainted with the situation.

The commission's action at this time is taken to indicate that it is disposed to enforce its finding as regards the Janesville water rates whether the plant is operated by a private company or by the city, although it was supposed that the commission would make certain modifications in its decision in case the plant was taken over by the city.

It will be impossible for the water company to install the new system of charges before the beginning of the next quarter, which will be on July 1st. In the meantime it is probable that the voters will again have passed on the municipal ownership question, and in case they again favor city control of the plant, an entirely new set of conditions may arise. Under the commission's order the increased annual expense to the city, and consequently to the taxpayers, for water service in both the public buildings and for fire protection purposes is estimated at from 15,000 to 18,000. The decrease is at the same, it is claimed, whether the plant was operated by the company or by the city. The new rates are lower to private consumers, however, as a glance at the order which is published below will indicate. The decrease is at the expense of the taxpayers, who will

STATE SENDS CHECK FOR FUND WITHHELD

County Treasurer Receives $3,167, Covering Costs and Interest Due in Reassessment

Tangle.

County Treasurer F. F. Livermore today received a check from the state treasurer for $3,167.50, covering the amount withheld from the county last fall together with interest on the sum and the costs of the action in the Dane county circuit court in which the tangle over the Janesville reassessment item as far as the state and county was concerned, was settled.

The original amount withheld, by the state was $2,995.29. The costs amounted to $59.00, and the remainder is interest at the rate of six per cent.

District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie and other county officials are pleased that the tangle has finally been settled as far as Rock county is concerned, to the entire satisfaction of the county.

The question of the illegal withholding of the funds and the question of costs were both argued in the circuit court, the decision being against the state in both instances. The state now looks to the city of Janesville if it intends to shift in any way the expense of the reassessment of 1911.

Joe Tinker-Manager
Chicago Federal League Team

BITTER FIGHT MARKS SEASON OF 1914 BY THE ENTRANCE OF THE FEDERAL LEAGUE—THE RAID ON THE TEAMS OF ORGANIZED BASEBALL BY THE OUTLAWS HAS PLAYED HAVOC AND COST THE MAGNATES HEAVILY TO HOLD THEIR STARS.

The baseball season of 1914 starts with added interest by the advent of a new league amply equipped with brains and money to do battle with the men who have held a monopoly in the baseball world for many years. The real fight was on early in the winter when the newcomers let it be plainly understood that they were in the fight to stay, and as far as money was concerned they had enough and more to give the men of Organized Baseball the fight of their lives.

The baseball season is now less than a week old and already the effect of the new league's debut has been felt. Teams that were looked upon in the winter as sure winners of pennants in their respective leagues, according to all the laws of dope and form that have been shot to pieces by the raids the newcomers made on their playing forces.

The American League was less hard hit than the older body. This, perhaps, may account for the attitude Ben Johnson, president of the American, has taken from the first, for it will be remembered, he said there was ample room for another league. It is well known that the American League, under the guidance of Johnson, who has been installed for life and clothed with all the powers of a Czar, has prospered better than the National which, until the election of Governor Tener, was torn by internal dissensions and its fifty-seven varieties of presidents were little more than figureheads. The National was ruled by a little clique of magnates and the head of the body was but a puppet in their hands. When they pulled their strings he danced, and it mattered not whether he liked it or not. Tener, as president, doubtless will correct all this.

Play Ball! The Glad Cry.

But the season is on now, and that time-worn but ever welcome cry "Play Ball!" has resounded through the breadth and length of the land, bringing joy to the hearts of millions of fans. Of course all eyes are focussed on the Feds. Sporting writers at first hostile to the new league, and seemingly dominated by the influence of the older bodies, were prone to make fun of the newcomer. They have changed their tune now, for with the millions of dollars that are behind the Feds they are an organization that must be reckoned with, and they have spent too much money already to ever consider the proposition to sell out to the older bodies. They want recognition and they will get it. This may not come this year, but the time is not far distant when both Ben Johnson and Governor Tener will be glad to approach the camp of the enemy beneath the folds of their flag of truce and seek some scheme by which the raid on their playing forces can be obliterated, thereby bringing playing salaries to a saner level.

Of course the players have profited tremendously by the new order of things. Joe Tinker, the first of the real stars to jump from Organized Baseball into the camp of the outlaws, only did so when a fabulous sum was guaranteed him as player-manager of the Chicago Feds. Otto Knabe left the Phillies to pilot the Baltimore under the all-wise guidance of Ned Hanlon, at a salary far in excess of what he ever dreamed of earning in Quakertown. He took others with him and all went at big increases.

In order to hold players that the Feds had made overtures to, the men of Organized Baseball were compelled to guarantee salaries on long contracts in excess of anything they had ever contemplated. Tris Speaker, for instance, upon his return from the world-tour signed by his Boston manager was re-signed by his Boston manager at a salary said to be the highest ever given a player. The sum reported is to be $18,000 a year. The honor of paying the biggest salaries, however, has been disputed by several of the magnates of the older bodies. Navin asserts that Ty Cobb, of his Detroit team, is still the highest paid player in the world. The contention also is made that John Mc-Graw, in making out his income tax returns, took oath to the fact that his annual salary as manager of the Giants is $30,000 a year. His contract has several years to run yet. Tinker's salary is in the neighborhood of $15,000 a year and he received a big cash bonus for signing.

Opening Gun Is Fired.

The loss of Tinker to the Cincinnati and Brooklyn teams was the opening gun fired in the baseball war. Tinker was sold to the Brooklyn team for $25,000, and of this sum $5,000 was to go to the player as a bonus for signing his contract with the Brooklyn team. Tinker balked and then came one of the biggest bombs ever fired in baseball ranks. Ebbers was out his money and the several players he was to toss into the trade, and Cincinnati was without the man it was to give. The matter was finally adjusted on some basis and Wilbert Robinson came from the Giants, where he had officiated as McGraw's chief aide and trainer of pitchers, to take charge of the Brooklyn team. Herzog was sold by the Giants to Cincinnati and he is piloting the Reds.

The baseball situation as it now stands is this: The National League is entrenched in Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago. The American is lined up in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis.

The Federals have installed themselves in Brooklyn, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Buffalo in the East, and Indianapolis, St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City in the West.

From the foregoing it can be seen that the National League is hardest hit as far as competition goes. The Feds oppose the National in Brooklyn and Pittsburgh, where heretofore the National had things all their own way in those cities. The baseball patronage of Chicago and St. Louis must now be divided between three clubs. There is not a field that the American League clubs exclusively controlled that the invaders have entered, which may be construed as another indication that some understanding existed between Ben Johnson and the outlaws. It might be doing Johnson an injustice to even hint such a thing, but all straw points that way.

Good Men As Pilots.

It is interesting to note that the eight Federal-League teams are in charge of shrewd men to guide their players. Tinker is handling the Chicago outfit, while William Bradley is leading the Brooklyn team, Otto Knabe is in Baltimore and Larry Schaffley heads the Buffalos. "Doc" Gessler is handling the Pittsburgh outfit and Miner Brown, once star slahman of the Chicago Cubs, is guiding the destinies of the St. Louis players. Bill Phillips is the Indianapolis manager, while George Stovall holds the reins over the Kansas City team. From this it can be gleaned that all these men know baseball in and out, and while some of them never had big league managerial experience nevertheless they have been in the game long enough to have picked up all the tricks of the trade.

James A. Gilmore, president of the Federal League, formerly known as "Fighting Jim" Gilmore, has a big fight ahead of him but those that know him best confidently predict that he will win with bells on. Backed by that young multi-millionaire, "Charlie" Weeghman, of Chicago, and William Walker, also of the Windy City, and both close friends of "Fighting Jim," Gilmore was given plainly to understand that he could "go the limit."

All he had to do was to make good and they would pay the bills. Weeghman made his fortune out of a chain of lunch rooms, beginning in a small and smoky little room where he personally served patrons with their "Beef and—". His fortune grew to colossal proportions and now he is willing to take a chance and buck one of the strongest combinations ever formed in this country for many contend that no trust in existence is as powerful as Organized Baseball.

Big Job Ahead Of Him.

Study the cold hard figures of finance revealed in pages from the history of Organized Baseball and you will gain some conception of the task undertaken by Fighting Jim Gilmore when he accepted the presidency of the Federal League. Forty-three circuits operate under the protection of the National Baseball Agreement, which means that his two chief opponents, the National and the American League have forty-one established organizations, feeders of talent to the major circuits which Gilmore must count as powerful aids to the two big bodies now opposing him. It has already cost Organized Baseball $400,000 to uphold its end. To the club owners in the association of minor leagues the National and American leagues paid $371,000 for young players last season. Some of these are now in the big leagues, destined to travel onward and upward in the path Organized Baseball points out, but others, rather than go back to the "minors" heeded the lure of the Feds and are receiving good salaries and will make good. Organized Baseball represents investments of upwards of $10,000,000 and this does not include contracts with players which could be turned into big cash sums at a moment's notice. Minor league players, in upwards of 300 cities controlled by Organized Baseball, draw salaries aggregating more than $400,000 a month during the playing season. It costs more than $150,000 to operate a major league team for one season, this sum being far below the expenses of a team with pennant aspirations, or one encountering reverses outside the won and lost columns of the league standing.

Gilmore Has No Fear.

But Mr. Gilmore proudly proclaims that he has fifty million dollars behind him and that he intends to give Organized Baseball a battle it never expected from a body of less than two years old.

An announcement made by Mr. Gilmore a day or two before his playing season opened shows just how the teams are being financed and the men in each city who are behind the movement. They are all representative citizens and the prediction is further made that one of the cities now in the struggle will be fought out next year and that New York will take its place. In fact the Feds already have an option on grounds in the big city and these are admirably located as far as transportation facilities are concerned.

FARM ORGANIZATION PROBLEMS OUTLINED BY FEDERAL EXPERT

Dr. T. N. Carver in Address at Market Conference in Chicago, Makes Keen Analysis of Agricultural Situation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 15.—The problem confronting the Rural Organization service of the department of agriculture, was described today by Dr. T. N. Carver, director of the service, as a problem of teaching the farmer how to earn a satisfactory income and then how to spend it. Dr. Carver spoke of the work at the conference of marketeers and farm products. A very little study of farmers' organizations in this and other countries, he said, would convince any one that the effective organization of the rural interests was one of the most difficult problems in the world.

The chief difficulty, he declared, was due to the fact that the farmers are the most numerous economic class in the country. They are scattered, they have a wide diversity of interests and many antagonisms and the process of selection tends to leave in the country those who are strong, individualistic, who prefer to be their own bosses and who have the capacity for self-direction.

Can't Standardize Farming. "All of these people," he continued, "are from the point of a new idea is exciting, and find it a great hardship to decide what to do next. They had to learn life unendurably. That perhaps more than any other single fact characterizes the life of a farmer. His work never can be standardized. He must always be in the act of deciding what to do next. His work from day to day, even from hour to hour, has to be adjusted to the conditions of soil and climate, the exigencies of plant and animal life, etc. This is no kind of a life for a man who is only capable of doing what he is told and incapable of deciding what he wants to do next. This process of selection, as I said, makes a rural population very independent in spirit and temperamentally difficult to organize.

"Another psychological difficulty perhaps grows out of the fact that the farmer's success has in the past depended very little upon his mental adaptability to other men. He has had to control the forces of nature rather than the forces of society. He is therefore less adept in those arts and graces which adorn social life, simply because his living has not depended upon it.

"Need Attractive Life. "The idea prevalent at the present time," said Dr. Carver in conclusion, "that all that is necessary is to enable the farmer to grow his products and to buy and sell to advantage in order that his income may be increased. I dare say that most people who are thinking on this problem today believe that the problem is solved when the farmer has been assured a satisfactory income. I wish to insist, on the contrary, that this is only half the problem. Paradoxical as it may seem, it is a matter of actual observation that the sections of the country where the land is richest, where crops have been most abundant, where land has reached the highest price, and the farm owners attain to the highest degree of prosperity, are the very sections from which the farm owners are retiring from the farms most rapidly and leaving them to tenants.

"We may as well face the fact first as last that there are only two things that will keep people in the country. One is poverty, or the inability to live in town. The other is the ability to make country life which will induce people to stay in the country even though they are financially able to live in town. The only thing, therefore, is to make country life sufficiently attractive to keep people in the country even when they are prosperous enough to live in town.

"This will indicate that the problem of organizing rural interests is very much wider than the problem of marketing or of rural credits, and of purchasing combined.

"I have classified problems calling for organizations under the following outlines:

For increasing the farmers' income:

(a) The marketing of farm products.

(b) The purchasing of farm supplies.

(c) The securing of adequate credit.

"II. For better living conditions in the country.

(a) Education.

(b) Communication—

1. Roads.

2. Telephones.

(c) Sanitation.

(d) Recreation.

LIGHT ON SEWING MACHINE

Small Lamp in Right Place Gives Increased Efficiency.

It has been discovered that a lamp at small power in the right place on the sewing or other machine operated in a like manner, gives the most satisfactory illumination and saves the expense of larger units of light placed at more remote locations. It is therefore likely that as a standard date in the construction of small machines of this character, provision will be generally made for mounting a lamp upon it at some point where the glow will be centered immediately upon the work in hand.

GOOD LIGHT ON WORK.

directly upon the work in hand. In this manner a lamp of four or five candle power will be more satisfactory than one ten times more powerful a few feet away. The use of the small lighting units have been found to be more satisfactory to the working people for the reason that a sufficient amount of light is directed immediately upon that portion of the work under observation, the saving represented in the equipment of a large shop is said to be considerable.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Goggles Which Give the Chauffeur a View in All Directions.

The newest thing in automobile goggles are endowed with the magic like quality of giving the wearer a view all around him as well as in front. These have been recently patented, and the main feature of the device is a pair of reflectors mounted on the sides of the goggles so that they may be readily placed in an operative or inoperative position, according to the desires of the wearer. One of these reflectors will give the chauffeur a clear view of all that is going on to the rear of him, such as approaching automobiles or teams and the other reflector being placed at a different angle, gives him an oblique view of the side. These reflectors do not in the least interfere with his constant view to the front of him.

Terrible Thought.

"Brederen," the old darky preacher said, "right in dis yeh connection I wants you to stop and consider what a good man de Lawd was, how he made de moments of time consecutive 'atid of simultaneous, fo', brederen, if our ancestors and our posterity had a both a been bo'n on dis yeh yearth at de same time, think what a confusion dere would a been and what would we a been at?"

WEDNESDAY.

If folks only took half as much care of their feet as they do of their heads, they would be as comfortable as the good old war.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ABUSING A COURTESY.

TO abuse or presume upon a courtesy which has been extended to you by a friend is extremely bad manners isn't it?

But to abuse a courtesy extended by a business house—that's an absolutely different thing.

At least a great many people seem to think so. Let me tell you a few samples of this sort of abuse which have recently come under my eye.

The giving of samples to a prospective customer is a business courtesy. It costs the firm a good deal more than most people realize. The manager of a wholesale house which handles expensive tapestry goods told me that their samples to retailers cost them about $10,000 a year. How the cost of samples for a big department store compares with this I do not know, but I am sure it is not small.

Now many people abuse this courtesy by carelessly taking half a dozen samples where one or two would do, but others abuse it in a much worse way. The shop of which I spoke has a retail department which handles many expensive figured tapestries and brocades, selling at from $5 to $10 a yard. In order to show the figure they used to give a sample several inches square. But they aren't doing it nowadays because of the craze for tapestry fancy work. What's the connection you ask? Well, they used them in making tapestry bags and other things of that sort.

Again, permitting a customer to take goods home to examine is a business courtesy of which advantage is often taken. A salesman in an upholstery shop told me of a woman who bought expensive curtains from him to take home on approval. They were sent back the next day. This same woman was being sued by another shop. She had bought some costly rugs there the same day and sent them back also. The point was that she was giving a party that night and wanted to dress up her apartment. The man who sold her the rugs found this out in some way and refused to receive them back. He finally sued her and won his case.

Taking the prospective customer to see a house in his automobile is a business courtesy often extended by the real estate agent. A woman who ought to be above such things astonished me by calmly announcing that several times when she felt like having an automobile ride she had gone to a real estate office and feigned interest in some property they had advertised.

Now of course we all know that the business courtesy is not extended for love of the customer, but through hope of landing him. Nevertheless a courtesy is a courtesy and to abuse it is to demean yourself. Furthermore it injures the innocent public, for in the last analysis it is the public which always suffers from such abuses, either by having the courtesy withdrawn or by paying for it in the overhead charges.

FAME BRINGS HER MANY PROPOSALS

Leona Dalrymple.

Writing a successful novel has brought not only fame to Miss Leona Dalrymple of Passaic, N. J., but a nice assortment of proposals as well. She is the author of "Diane of the Green Van," for which she recently received a prize of $10,000. When the prize was announced her picture was widely published, and within three weeks she had eight proposals by mail. She hastily announced that she is already engaged to a chap named Clarence A. Wilson of her home town. She is twenty-eight years old.

It is true that often the things we hope for fail to put in an appearance, but think of the wonderful compensation we get in the good things that appear so unexpectedly.—Lloyd.

CURATIVE FRUIT JUICES.

In Riley M. Fletcher Berry's work on "Fruit Juices" there are some delicious recipes for the use of fruits and at this season of the year when the blood needs toning after the winter it will be well to observe some of the good uses to which the juices of fruits may be put.

Baked Lemon or Orange.—Bake a lemon or an orange in the oven until soft and eat it hot with or without sugar just before retiring. Skip the evening meal and follow the fruit treatment with a good drink of water. This should be followed up for several nights in succession. This is an excellent remedy for colds.

Cider Egg Nogg.—To one egg whipped and sweetened slightly with sugar add a glass of cider, sprinkle with grated nutmeg and serve with shaved ice or serve hot.

Flaxseed Lemonade.—An old-fashioned and effective remedy for cold is this laxative drink. Pour a quart of boiling water over a cupful of flaxseed. Add the juice of two lemons and sugar as required. Let steep in a covered jar for several hours and drink hot, thinned with boiling water if so desired, just before retiring.

Italian Cure for Malaria.—Slice thin one lemon, rind and all, and place in a saucepan. Over this pour one and a half pints of cold water and cook down to half a pint, then strain through a coarse cloth, so that some of the pulp goes through. Let stand until cool and drink fasting. This should be kept up for several days.

Lemon for Headache.—The juice of a large lemon squeezed into a small cup of strong black coffee with no sugar will often prevent or cure a headache.

Using lemon with tea is not a fad or fancy, but a wise combination as the citric acid of the lemon offsets the tannic acid in the tea, rendering it refreshing and wholesome.

The lemon is valuable for purifying the blood and toning the system. It acts directly on the liver, cools the blood, and some physicians claim it drives away typhoid germs.

Next to the citrus fruits the pineapple is found to be most beneficial in its effects on the human system. It is rich in mineral salts and contains an active substance which has the power of digesting proteins.

Women Worth While

MRS. R. H. GITTINS.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

Mrs. Gittins, wife of Representative Gittins of Niagara Falls, claims that she is unique in the fact that there is nothing remarkable about herself.

Mrs. Gittins was Miss Mary Tabbutt of Michigan. As a child she was a frail being, but a rigorous course of physical culture has developed her into a rosy, healthy woman. She has blonde coloring and kindly manners and her gowns are always the best that a fashionable modiste can turn out.

Love of children might be called her predominant characteristic. For though there are no children in the family, Mrs. Gittins and her husband are both devoted to little ones.

"If I had wealth," she remarked recently, "I am sure I would love to devote it to children, the children of the poor who need so much of those who are in want but bravely try to hide their poverty. It is these that life's sufferings come to and it is to just such families as these that it would be the joy of my life to bring aid."

As to suffrage, I have not studied the subject yet sufficiently to form an opinion, but I do know that I am for everything which will help my sex. If suffrage will do it, I am for suffrage. It seems to be the general opinion now that the vote will be given to women within a few years and if it is I feel sure I will be ready to cast mine. Yet I have not as yet told you, sufficiently formed an opinion to be able to say that I am an advocate. But I can say that any movement which has for its object the betterment of women, the helping of children, the improvement of the working girl's condition, has my most sincere sympathy and aid.

Another of Mrs. Gittins' ideas is that it would be a wise measure to put a tax on bachelors and also on married couples who are childless. In this way the father of a numerous brood would be aided in rearing his children and those who have shirked their own duty in this matter would be obliged to receive some of the responsibilities of parenthood.

The Gittins home is at Niagara Falls, where Mr. Gittins is a lawyer. Mrs. Gittins says that it is a most beautiful place, that the thunder of the Falls can be heard all over the city, but that, contrary to the general opinion, commercialism has not ruined that great work of nature. Factories have not marred the view or changed the course of the water, but on the contrary the work of the plants has greatly improved the surroundings of America's wonder of the world.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To remove wall paper, wet the paper all over two or three times a day before trying to remove it. The walls will draw damp and the paper is easily peeled off.

To prevent bacon twisting up when frying, dip the slices quickly into hot water before putting in the pan and they will fry flat.

A teaspoonful of washing soda and a cup of vinegar will clean out the most stubborn clogged pipes of sinks.

If silver spoons have become stained by eggs, rub them with table salt.

THE TABLE.

Boiled Fresh Codfish.—Lay a square chunky piece of fish in salt and water for an hour. Stew it up in a piece of white muslin netting, put it in a kettle with enough boiling water to cover it well, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and cook steadily, allowing ten minutes to the pound. Unwrap the fish and pour over it an egg sauce.

Molasses Cake.—Two-thirds cup of sugar, two-thirds cupful of butter, two-thirds cupful of molasses, one egg, one cupful of milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, one even teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one heaping teaspoonful of soda, one even tablespoonful of mixed spice, one tablespoonful of vinegar, or lemon juice. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and stir in the molasses. Sift in one-half cupful of the flour. Beat the egg, mix it with the milk. Mix the cream of tartar, soda and the spice with the flour and add the flour and the milk alternately, stirring well to make a smooth dough. Stir in the vinegar or the lemon juice and bake at once in gem pans or in two shallow pans or in a loaf pan.

Cream of Tomato Soup.—One-half can of tomatoes, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one-quarter teaspoonful of soda, one quart of milk, one slice of onion, four tablespoonfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-third cup of butter. Scald the milk with the onion, remove the onion and thicken the milk with the flour diluted with cold water until thin enough to pour, being careful that the mixture is free from lumps; cook twenty minutes, stirring constantly at first. Cook the tomatoes with the sugar fifteen minutes, add the soda and rub through a sieve; combine the mixtures and strain into a tureen over the butter, salt and pepper.

Boiled Dressing.—One-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of mustard, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sugar, few grains of cayenne, one-half tablespoonful of flour, yolks of two eggs, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three-quarters cup of milk, one-quarter cup of vinegar. Mix the dry ingredients, add the yolks of the eggs slightly beaten, butter, milk and the vinegar very slowly. Cook over boiling water until the mixture thickens; strain and cool.

Heart and Home Problems

My Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of 18, and do not really love any boy, but keep company with a young man of 20. He loves me, or at least appears to. I go with him just to get a way of escape, and he takes me to every thing. Is it right for me to do that?

(2) I've gone with a number of fellows, but my folks don't like any of them except some of the fellows. My age and I can't enjoy myself with a man so old; they don't seem to be amused at anything I am. What shall I do? (3) Is it right for a girl to go with more than one fellow in a week?

(4) Should a girl call a fellow up over the telephone?

(5) What should a girl do if two fellows get in a quarrel over her when she doesn't care for either of them? Should she ever go with either of them again?

(6) Is it proper for a girl to ride horse back astride?

(7) Should a girl have a girl chum? Please give me all the advice you can. A SCHEMER.

(1) I see no reason why you should not be good friends with this boy and accompany him to respectable places of amusement. Of course you should not let him know that you do not allow him to think you are in love with him and do not permit him to take any liberties with you. (2) It is not natural for young girls to be chum with men twice their age. A girl of four years your senior will be more companionable for you, and is just as safe as the older man, sometimes safer.

(3) I suppose you have more than one boy friend, my dear, and I do not see why you should not be pleasant to all of them and accompany more than one during the week. However, a girl of your age should not go about too much with boys. You should have other matters to occupy your mind, such as your education, your home and family and the business of becoming a capable woman.

(4) A nice girl doesn't call up fellows on the phone. She lets the boys do any necessary phoning.

(5) Ignore the matter as much as possible. Gentlemen do not bring a girl's name into a quarrel. (6) Yes, is it the only safe and healthful way of riding. (7) Why not? But don't make more of them than you do of your own mother. The only person it is really safe to tell all your secrets to, honey, is Mother.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of fourteen and am in love with a boy of sixteen. My folks are hard against it. What shall I do—listen to my folks or keep going with him? (2) At what age would I be old enough to have a husband?

(3) Is a girl of eighteen old enough to get married?

(4) Is it proper for a girl of fourteen to go to town Saturday evenings?

(5) Both you and the boy are too young to be thinking seriously of love, my dear. You will both get very very tired of each other and like somebody else a lot more before you are old enough to really fall in love and marry. Mind father and mother, dearie.

(6) Wait until you are eighteen. (7) Yes, according to the law. (8) Not alone. She should go with some older member of her family.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 16 and deeply in love with a fellow 19 years old. Am I too young to have fellows?

(2) My folk have no objection to my going with him if I come home early about ten o'clock. Do you think that is alright?

BROWN EYES.
(1) You are too young to think seriously of marriage. Wait until you are at least 18 before making up your mind that you are in love with any one fellow. The boy is too young also. He may like somebody entirely different when he is 21. (2) You should be in bed by ten o'clock, my dear, if you are going to be a strong, healthy, lovely woman.

Lady Baltimore Cake

The Most Popular Cake This Season
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This is considered by many cooking authorities the finest cake that can be made, though in reality it is not at all difficult.

K C Lady Baltimore Cake
One cup butter; 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 cup milk; 1 teaspoonful rose water; 3½ cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; whites of 6 eggs, beaten dry.

Cream the butter and beat in the sugar gradually. Sift together, three times, the flour and baking powder, and add to the butter and sugar, alternately with the milk and rose water. Lastly, add the egg whites. Bake in three-layer cake pans. Put the layers together with the following frosting.

Notes: The cake is a large one and sells at Women's exchanges for $1.50.

Fronting for Lady Baltimore C. K.
Three cups granulated sugar; 1 cup butter; 1 cup milk; 1 cup chopped raisins; 1 cup chopped nut-meats; 5 figs cut in thin slices.

Stir the sugar and water until the sugar is dissolved, then let boil without stirring until the syrup from a spoon will spin a long thread; pour upon the whites of the eggs, beaten dry, beating constantly meanwhile. Continue the beating until the frosting is cold; add the fruit and spread upon the cake.

TUSKEGEE SCHOOL IS A CITY BY ITSELF

Booker T. Washington To Tell of Institution for Negroes When He Speaks Here April 24th.

Dr. Washington is making a campaign through Wisconsin in the interest of negro education in the south. He will describe what Tuskegee is doing to help build up a system of negro education in the south.

A recent visitor to the Tuskegee Institute wrote in regard to that school as follows:

"Tuskegee is not a school, in the ordinary sense of the word. It is a city itself, a community that dominates a whole country. It is a great industrial plant with forty trades and industries that consumes all its own products, that erects its own buildings (first making its own bricks), that grows its own food, makes its own clothes, writes and prints its own text books, all by way of education. It is a mammoth laboratory in which a race problem is being worked out."

Booker T. Washington and the Tuskegee Institute are doing for the negro population what the University of Wisconsin is doing for its state. The idea that makes the institution at Tuskegee and at Madison similar in purpose and accomplishment. Both are striving to get into close touch with the people and to influence the affairs of everyday life: to teach the farmer how to raise larger crops and better herds; to instruct the housewife in domestic arts; to improve the standard of living; to develop raw labor into skilled labor; in short, to improve conditions of society in the mass. Where the University of Wisconsin is in the land, the finest embodiment of the extension idea in education, is working for the people of one commonwealth. Tuskegee has a wider range of service, to change conditions among the masses of a whole race, and at that, a race handicapped by the years of slavery.

BREWERY AGENTS TO MOVE HEADQUARTERS

Men Doing Business in Rockford Will Leave Illinois, Fearing Supreme Court Decision.

According to reports received from Rockford, which went by an overwhelming majority at last week's election, the brewery agents located there are preparing to move their business to either Beloit or Janesville on or before May 1. The reason for this move is the decision of the supreme court of Illinois will declare the equal suffrage act constitutional. A decision is expected this week, and while in Chicago betting is two to one that the act will be held illegal, Rockford "wets" are not so optimistic and they will be ready to do business in the Wisconsin cities the moment Belvidere and Pecatonica are closed to them.

It is the opinion that most of the agents will move their offices to Beloit on account of it being closer to Rockford than Janesville.

A brewery agent yesterday said: "I still believe Rockford will become a 'wet' city by a decision of the supreme court knocking out the woman's vote, but if the decision is against us I shall move my business to Beloit or Janesville, and presumably to Beloit because it is nearer and the expense of shipping beer to this and other cities near here would not be so great."

It is reported that "wets" are preparing to file a formal protest against the election of last week so that in the event the supreme court knocks out the woman's ballot they will be protected. A leader of the "wet" forces said yesterday that if such steps were to be taken he knew nothing about them. He was of the opinion that if the woman suffrage act was declared unconstitutional the vote of the men would automatically place Rockford in the "wet" column, and without further proceedings of any kind.

It was understood yesterday that the protest is being prepared and will be filed before the expiration of ten days after the election, which will be on Thursday.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Father Has Discovered a Fine Cure for the Blues—

By F. LEIPZIGER

WHY ARE YOU SO TIRED?

The Weather is Not To Blame For That "Dragged Out" Feeling.

"This weather simply takes the life right out of me, I can hardly drag one foot after the other," said a run-down, tired-out woman, the other day.

We want to say to every such person in this vicinity. Don't blame the weather, it's your condition. You need a strengthening tonic and the very best we know is Vinol which is a combination of the two most world-famous tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil and tonic iron, for the blood.

A case has just come to our attention from Milford, Mich. "Mrs. Julia Barber says: 'I was run-down and hardly able to drag about; my appetite was poor and I was not able to work. My druggist asked me to try Vinol. The first bottle helped me and after taking the second bottle I was able to work and felt well and strong. Vinol is the best medicine I have ever taken.'

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned, if it does not help you. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many Janesville People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Baokache is so deceptive. It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it. Possibly it's weak kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

They're especially for weak or disordered kidneys.

Here's a Janesville case.

Lewis Gower, decorator, 1314 Mineral Street, Janesville, Wis. says: "Handing paints and turpentine probably started my kidney trouble, and I had severe attacks of pain through my loins. When I bent over I had trouble in straightening again. My kidneys acted irregularly. I was possible that riding a bicycle had something to do with bringing on the backache. It was Doan's Kidney Pills that cured me. Since then my kidneys have been strong and haven't had any more pains or aches. I still use Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile and they keep my kidneys in good shape."

The Valiants of Virginia

Halle Ermine River
Ohio, New Windsor

Illustrated by Louis Best

Opposite the canvas-covered grand stand sat twelve small mushroom tents, each with a staff and tiny flag. Midway lines of faxen ropes stretched between rows of slender peeled saplings from whose tops floated fanged streamers of vivid-bunting. A pavilion of purple cloth, open at the sides, awaited for the committee, and near the center, a negro band was disposed on camp-stools, the brass of the waiting instruments twinkling in the sunlight. The stand was a confused glow of color, of light gauzy dresses, of young girls in pastel muslins with flowers in their belts, picturesque hats and slender articulate hands darting in vivacious gestures like white swallows, the gentry from the "big houses."

The light athletic figure, towed by the white bull-dog, drew many glances. Valiant's eyes, however, as they swept the seats, were looking for but one, and at first vainly. He felt a quick pang of disappointment. Perhaps she would not come! Perhaps her mother was still ill! Perhaps—but then suddenly his heart beat high, for he saw her in the lower tier, with a group of young people. He could not have told what she wore, save that it was of soft Murillo blue with a hat whose down-curved brim was wound with a shaded plume of the same tint. Her mother was not with her. She was not looking his way as he passed—her arms at the moment being held out in an adorable gesture toward a little child in a smiling matron's lap, and but a single glance was vouchsafed to him before the major seized upon him and bore him to the purple pavilion, for he was one of the committee.

But for this distraction, he might have seen, entering the stand with the Chalmers just as the hand struck up a delicious whirl of "Dixie," the two strangers whom the doctor had observed an hour before as they whirled by the Merryweather Mason house behind the judge's grass.

Silas Fargo might have passed in any gathering for the unobtrusive city man. Katharine was noticeable anywhere, and today her tall willowy figure in its champagne-color flimsy gown and hat garnished with bronze and gold thistles, setting in relief her ivory stateliness, drew a wave of whispered comment which left a sibilant wake behind him. The party made a picturesque group as they now disposed themselves, Katharine's colorless loveliness contrasting with the eager sparkle of pretty Nancy Chalmers and the gipsy-like beauty of Betty Page.

"You call it a tournament, don't you?" asked Katharine of the judge.

"Yes," he replied. "It's a kind of contest in which twelve riders compete for the privilege of naming a Queen of Beauty. There's a ball tonight, at which the lucky lady is crowned. Those little tents are where the noble knights don their shining armor. See, there go their caparisoned chargers."

A file of negroes was approaching the tents, each leading a horse whose saddle and bridle were decorated with fringes of various hues. In the center of the roped lists, directly in front of the stand, others were planting upright in the ground a tall pole from whose top projected a horizontal arm like a slender gallows. From this was suspended a cord at whose end swung a tiny object that whirled and glittered in the sun.

The judge explained. "On the end of the cord is a silver ring, at which the knights tilt with lances. Twelve rings are used. The pike-points are made to fit them, and the knight who carries off the greatest number of the twelve is the victor. The whole thing is a custom as ancient as Virginia—a relic, of course, of the old jousting of the feudal ages. The ring is supposed to represent the device on the boss of the shield, at which the lance-thrust was aimed."

"How interesting!" exclaimed Katharine, and turning, swept the stand with her longnettes. "I suppose all the county's F. F. V.'s are here," she said laughingly to Nancy Chalmers. "I've often wondered, by the way, what became of the Second Families of Virginia."

"Oh, they've mostly emigrated North," answered Nancy. "The ones that are left are all ancient. There are families here that don't admit they ever began at all."

Silas Fargo shook his stooped shoulders with laughter. "Up North," he said genially, "we've got regular factories that turn out ready-made families for anybody who wants to root in one."

And now over the fluttering stand and the crowd about the barriers, a stir was discernible. Katharine looked again at the field. "Who is that splendid old man giving directions? The one who looks like a lion. He's coming this way, now."

"That's Major Montague Bristow," said the judge. "He's been master of the heralds for years. The tournament could hardly happen without the major."

"I'm sure I'd like him," she answered. "What a lovely girl he is talking to!"

It was Shirley who had beckoned the major from the lists. She was leaning over the railing. "Why has Ridgeley Pendleton left?" she asked in a low voice. "Isn't he one of the twelve?"

"He was. But he's ill. He wasn't feeling up to it when he came, but he didn't give up till half an hour ago. We'll have to get along with eleven knights."

She made an exclamation of dismay. "Poor Ridgeley! And what a pity! There have never been less than the full number. It will spoil the royal quadrille to-night, too. Why doesn't the committee choose some one in his place? Listen. Why not ask Mr. Valiant? He is our host tonight. I'm sure he'd be glad to help out, even without the costume."

"Egad!" he said, pulling his imperial. "None of us had thought of him. He could ride Pendleton's mount, of course. He reflected a moment. I'll do it. It's exactly the right thing. You're a clever girl, Shirley."

He hastily crossed the field, while she leaned back, her eyes on the flannel figure—long since recognized—under the purple pavilion. She saw the committee put their heads together and hurriedly enter.

In the moment's wait, Shirley's gloved fingers clasped and unclasped somewhat nervously. The riders had been chosen long before John Valiant's coming. If a saddle, however, was perforce to be vacant, what more appropriate than that he should fill it? The thought had come to her instantly, bred of an underlying regret, which she had all along cherished, that he was not to take part. But beneath this was a deeper passionate wish that she did not attempt to analyze to see him assume his place with others long habituated to that closed circle—a place rightfully his by reason of birth and name—and to lighten the gloomy shadow that must rest on his thoughts of his father, with warmer sunnier things. She heaved a secret sigh of satisfaction as the white-clad figure rose in acquiescence.

The major returned to the grand stand and held up his hand for silence. "Our gracious Liege," he proclaimed, in his big vibrant voice, "Queen of Beauty, yet unknown, Lords, Knights and Esquires, Fair Dames and Gentles all! Whereas divers noble persons have entered and taken upon them to hold jousts royal and tourney, you are hereby acquainted that the lists of Runnymede are about to open for that achievement of arms and grand and noble tournament for which they have so long been famed. But an hour since one of our noble knights, pricking hither to tilt for his lady, was beset by a grievous malady. However, lest our jousting lack the royal number, a new champion hath at this last hour been found to fill the Table Round, who of his courtesy doth consent to ride without armor."

A buzz ran over the assemblage. "It must be Pendleton who has defaulted," said Judge Chalmers. "I heard this morning he was sick. Who's the substitute knight, I wonder?"

At the moment a single mounted herald before the tents blew a long blast on a silver horn. Their flaps parted and eleven knights issued to mount their steeds and draw into line behind him. They were brilliantly decked in flashings with slashed doublets and plumed chapeaus, and short jeweled cloaks dropped from their shoulders. Pages handed each a long lance which was held perpendicular, the butt resting on the right stirrup.

Under the pavilion, just for the fraction of a second, Valiant hesitated. Then he turned swiftly to the twelfth knight, his flag-staff bore a long streamer of deep blood-red. He snatched this from its place, flung it about his waist and knotted it sash-wise. He drew the rose from his lapel and thrust it through the band of his Panama, leaped to the saddle of the horse the major had beckoned, and with a quick thrust of his heel, swung to the end of the stamping line.

The field and grand stand had seen the quick decision, with its instant action, and as the hoofs thudded over the turf, a wave of hand-clapping ran across the seats like a silver rain. "Neatly done, upon my word!" said the judge, delighted. "What a daring idea! Who is it? Is it—bless my soul, it is!"

Katharine Fargo had dropped her longnettes with an exclamation. She stood up, her wide eyes fixed on that figure in pure white, with the blood-red cordon flaunting across his horse's flanks, and the single crimson blossom glowing in his hat.

"The White Knight!" she breathed. "Who is he?"

Judge Chalmers looked round in sudden illumination. "I forgot that you would be likely to know him, he said. 'That is Mr. John Valiant of Danbury Court.'

CHAPTER XXIII

The Knight of the Crimson Rose. The row of horsemen had halted in a curving line before the grand stand, and now in the silence the herald, holding a parchment scroll, spurred before each rider in turn, demanding his title. As this was given he whirled to proclaim it, accompanying each exclamation with a blast on his horn. "Knight of the Golden Spur," "Knight of the Silver Cross," "Lord of Brandon," "Westover's Knight," "Knight of the Silver Cross," the names, fanciful or those of family estates, fell on John Valiant's ear with a pungent flavor of medievalism. He started as he became aware that the rider next him had answered and that the herald had paused before him.

"Knight of the Crimson Rose!" It sprang to his lips without forethought, an echo, perhaps, of the improvised sash and the flower in his hat-band, but the shout of the herald and the trumpet's blast seemed to make the words fairly bulge with inevitability. And through this struck a sudden, appalled feeling that he had really spoken Shirley's name, and that every one had heard. He could not see her face, and clutched his lance fiercely to overcome an insane desire to stoop hideously in his saddle and peer under the shading hat-brim. Lest he should do this, he fastened his eyes determinedly on the major, who now proceeded to deliver himself of the "Charge to the Knights."

The major made an appealing center to the charming picture as he stood on the green turf, "the glass of fashion and the mold of form," his head bare, his shock of blond-gray hair thrown back, and one hand thrust between the buttons of his snowy waistcoat. His rich bass voice rolled out to the farthest corner of the field: "Sir Knights,"

"The tournament to which we are gathered today is to us traditional; a rite of antiquity and a monument of ancient generations. This relic of the jousts of the Field of the Cloth-of-Gold points us back to an era of knightly deeds, fidelity to sacred trust, obligation to duty and loyalty to woman."

as—the watchwords of true knight-hood.

"We like to think that when our forefathers, offspring of men who established chivalry, came from overseas, they brought with them not only this ancient play, but the precepts it symbolizes. We may be proud, indeed, knowing that this is no hollow ceremonial, but an earnest that the flower of knighthood has not withered in the world, that in an age when the greed of gold was never so dazzling, the spirit of true gallantry has not faded but blooms luxuriant in the sparkling dew of the heart of this commonwealth."
